Chinese character practice sheet with pinyin

This tool can be used to create PDF writing sheets for Chinese. You can enter the Chinese text you want and then you can get Chinese PDF worksheets dedicated to practicing your Chinese characters. Standard (basic) settings show how things can be placed. The basic settings that are set for characters to fade automatically from strong to almost invisible across the page (later in advanced settings you'll see it under the selected progressive face). There are also bins above the characters in copybook worksheets. For advanced Chinese worksheet tools, you can choose the size of the paper, whether vertically or horizontally, or the size of rows, if you add titles to the page, for example, the letter no. 1. There is also the option to change the Chinese worksheet line, change the location of pinyin, and resize the characters. Displaying characters means whether you see only one character individually or a word together. Any one line of 字 is followed by a 字字 or one line of 字帖 followed by 字帖. You can choose how dark the letters so that you can work on a better copy book for you. There are a lot of different hanzi network styles that you can use on advanced systems depending on the one you are familiar with. You can also change the spacing of rows or columns. Warning! The browser/operating system you are using appears to be not currently supported and this may result in incorrect papercreation. Using Chrome/Firefox/IE is recommended at this tip stage. type pinyin and choose char with 'space' I created this site as I couldn't find a quick and easy way to create my own custom practice paper. I also wanted to be able to display the stroke system in a neat way, and why not add binin and definition at the same time! After creating the algorithm behind it, I thought I would share it with the world for free. If you find some problems, please report them so they can be fixed. We hope you find this site useful and easy as well, and if you think it is worth a bonus, please consider donating according to your meaning so I can keep the site alive. Thank you very much.
